Mulching.

This is a very important subject to all who are engaged in the cultivation of fruit and ornamental trees, and, indeed, to all who are following the pursuit of agriculture, even if their labors are confined to but a small lot of land. In a word, if only a few shrubs or bushes are to be planted out in a village lot, a small garden to be kept as a source from which to produce the vegetables and small fruits necessary for family consumption, or a farm of large or small dimensions to be cultivated in varied crops, mulching is an operation of great practical value.

In our brief treatment of this subject we will mention in the outset the objects to be attained by mulching, which are twofold, viz.: To preserve a uniform degree of moisture in the soil during summer, and protect the roots of plants from severe frosts during winter. These conditions are obviously important to vegetation, and they can be very efficiently secured by covering the surface with a stratum of porous materials, such as tan bark, charcoal dust, leaves or straw manure, which will prevent the surface soil from becoming compact or hard, and, at the same time, assist in maintaining a uniformity in its mechanical texture favorable to the retention of moisture.

The Women's Hotel—the late Alexander T. Stewart's project to furnish a comfortable home for working women—was opened in New York City, on the 1st of August, for examination, and nearly 40,000 persons passed through the building during the evening. The immense marble structure faces on three public streets and is built around a spacious court yard, which is itself a beautiful garden with many rare plants and a fountain. Everything about the building is new and handsome, and the place will be conducted on the plan of a first-class hotel. There are 502 sleeping rooms and accommodations for one thousand guests. The cost of the hotel has been $3,700,000. Guests will be charged $3 a week.

The New York Assembly has passed a bill limiting the salaries of officials in cities and placing the power of reducing salaries in the hands of the common council of a city, except in cities where there is a board of appointment, which shall act as it deems proper in regard to the amount of salaries and number of employees. Governor Van Zandt, the Republican candidate, has been re-elected in Rhode Island. The general assembly is Republican.

Sylvester Town and his father-in-law, while attempting to cross a small lake a few miles north of Auburn, N. Y., in a boat were captured by the town guard. Mr. Town had married the previous evening. General Thomas C. Devin, of the United States army, died at his home in New York, aged fifty-two years. At the commencement of the New York Medical College for Women twenty-five young ladies received diplomas to practice medicine.

Holt & Bugbee, Boston lumber merchants, have failed for $175,000. A complimentary dinner was given in New York City to the newly-appointed United States minister to Berlin. Speeches were made by Mayor Ely, William Cullen Bryant, Mark Twain and others. Western and Southern States. In obedience to an order of the Louisiana supreme court General Anderson, of the retreating army, was released. The court refused to reopen his case.

The joint resolution of Montgomery Blair, instructing the attorney-general of Maryland, to exhibit a bill in the supreme court of the State of Maryland praying for a judicial review of the electoral count and which passed the house of delegates, was also passed by the Senate. The Maryland Legislature has adjourned sine die. Spring elections in various cities and towns of Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Illinois have been held, with varying success for both parties. In many cases local issues carried the day. In Terre Haute, Ind., the National party was successful over both Republicans and Democrats. In Michigan the Nationalists also developed unexpected strength.

She had become partially deranged by anxiety attendant upon her case and the fear of punishment, and in this state committed self-murder.

A Cubic Mile of Humanity. A fanciful genius suggests that it is now time to celebrate the completion of the first cubic mile of humanity, and gives a calculation to show that the bodies of all mankind, from the first Adam down to the Adams just born, if closely packed without diminution of volume, would exactly fill that space. Here are his figures, which our young mathematicians who have nothing else to do may verify if they can.

According to the orthodox chronology the world has been inhabited about 6,000 years, or 170 generations. Its present population is about fifteen hundred millions; but this density of population must have been slowly reached, since all are descended from an original. Consequently he takes half the number of the present seven hundred and fifty millions, as the average population of the world from the beginning until now, making the aggregate of human bodies during the 170 generations, 127,500 millions. Since many die in infancy, and half are women, the average weight of each body is taken as seventy-four pounds. The aggregate weight of all mankind to date must accordingly be 4,212 million tons, or a little more than the weight of a cubic mile of sea water.

Since the human body, with the lungs not inflated, is a trifle heavier than sea water, our calculator assumes that his estimated 4,212 million tons of humanity would fill the same space as 4,205 million tons of sea water, or precisely one cubic mile.

Taking the same figures and exercising the same freedom in striking averages, the mathematically inclined may deduce any number of amusing results. For instance, assuming the average length of humanity to be a little under four feet, the bodies of all mankind, living and dead, placed end to end, would just make a bridge from the earth to the sun—Scientific American.

Gathorne Hardy, to be secretary of State for India; the Hon. Frederick A. Stanley, to be secretary of State for war; Sir Henry Selwyn Selwyn, to be secretary of the treasury, in place of the Hon. F. A. Stanley.

The British Government has issued a circular to the European powers, complaining of the terms imposed by Russia on Turkey. It objects to the treaty in detail, and says that it would not be the interest of England to enter congress "restricted by Prince Gortschakoff's latest reservations." It appeals to the Treaty of 1856 and the Declaration of 1871, and implies that both are still in force.

Russia is strengthening her positions about Constantinople. The Queen's message, explaining why the reserve troops were called out, was read in the British House of Commons. The Earl of Leitrim, his clerk and driver were all shot dead while riding near the nobleman's residence, county of Kerry, Ireland. The assassin is thought to have been the result of troubles with tenants on the earl's property. The Mexican Congress has begun its session. A deputation of five hundred English Liberals called upon Lord Granville and Hartington and asked them, as leaders of the Liberal party, to oppose a war with Russia.
